

Dream Big – August 5, 2018

MESSAGE NOTES

Have you ever had a big dream for your life?
Are you willing to dream big today?

Today's scripture is Genesis 18:1-15.

- What does this passage teach us about God?
- Can you relate to Sarah? If so, how?

God, in essence, tells Sarah, "I'm bigger than you think I am. Nothing is too hard for me." Big dreams are rooted in a big God, and the problem for most of us is that our God is too small.

William Wilberforce certainly dreamed big. What does his story say to you? How does it inspire or challenge you?

God invites us to dream big regardless of how old we are.

- Throughout the Bible God gives new dreams to folks in their old age.

God gives us new dreams precisely when our old dreams have failed.

- God-sized dreams often start when personal-sized dreams have come to an end.
- Daring to dream big is risky. To dream is to risk being disappointed, but we're free to take that risk because of who God is.

The Kingdom Is Near

- What is your primary take away from this series? What question(s) has it raised for you?
- Do you have a God-sized dream that you're feeling called to pursue? What's your next step?
- Do you sense that God has something else for you but aren't sure what it is? Are you willing to step out of your comfort zone to follow God's stirring? What's your next step?
